

Where are you now? And where are you planning to go? To be successful, a technology plan must take into consideration new, existing, and emerging technologies that support the library's mission, and plan for enhancement and expansion of future services.

SirsiDynix Consulting Services wants to ensure that you are making the most of your investment in our products. So that is why we have created this service: to maximize the value of your SirsiDynix technology. If your library is considering any major changes or upgrades, you'll want to take advantage of the Software Technology Planning/Review offered by SirsiDynix Consulting Services. This service will help you review your current ILS deployment to ascertain where it is serving you well, highlight areas that can be maximized, and make plans for future service enhancements.

This two-day consulting visit and follow-up report will assist you in determining the direction of your planning and review. Here are some suggested options:

- Identify current workflows or processes that need tuning. Data, and configuration choices that need reviewing, or cleanup in anticipation of an ILS upgrade
- Explore the next generation of SirsiDynix products and services, designed to boost productivity and assist your library in continuing to offer users top-quality services and state-of-the-art technology
- Note third-party products that may be impacted by technology changes, especially those products that communicate or interact with your ILS system
- Identify current reports and statistics-gathering procedures that must continue uninterrupted by technical enhancements, and review new features that may make such reporting faster and easier
- Exploration of the next generation of SirsiDynix products and services, designed to boost productivity and assist your library in continuing to offer users top-quality services and technology
- Investigate our partners' software that can be integrated with your ILS to greatly enhance the mission of your library and empower both library patrons and staff

The Technology review will maximize the value of your SirsiDynix technology and help you make proactive decisions for your future.

- Maximize the value of your SirsiDynix technology
- Make proactive decisions for the future
- Benefit from a technical expert outside your institution who can objectively spot areas for growth and improvement
- Stay on track with technological upgrades, third-party offerings, and more without devoting time away from your daily schedule to track technological advances and changes
